

Raising Sons in the Age of Trump

One of the most disturbing facets of the wave of hysteria sweeping half the nation in the wake of Donald Trump's presidential election victory is the recent trend of feminist confessionals about their problematic feelings for their male children.

a recent opinion piece for The Sydney Morning Herald, self-declared feminist Polly Dunning, herself the daughter of a prominent feminist, expressed difficulty "reconciling my biology with my ideology, particularly when I discovered that my baby, my most-beloved Alfred, would be a boy."

As an aside, if your ideology is at odds with your biology, that's a sure sign that your ideology is at odds with reality, and a life reevaluation is in order.
