

The Warriors Won't be Visiting Trump's White House, and that's a Shame

Via Yahoo News:

The 2017 NBA Champions Golden State Warriors unanimously decided as a team not to meet Donald Trump in the White House, as is custom for winning teams.

The Warriors beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 129-120 to seal the hard-fought series 4-1.

It is the second championship for the California team in three years, and the third consecutive NBA finals series between the two teams.

The Warriors attended the White House ceremony in their honour when they won the championship in 2015 while former President Barack Obama was in office. The Cavaliers did the same last year.

This news isn't a total surprise, since Warriors coach Steve Kerr and star guard Stephen Curry had made their disdain for Trump known.
